Strong & Steady: Improve your strength and balance with simple exercises you can build into your daily routine. A free resistance band and exercise booklet is available for anyone aged over 50. This new initiative encourages and supports residents to be more active through incorporating simple strength and balance exercises into everyday life. As we get older regular strength and balance exercise is particularly important and has many benefits, including improving physical function and making everyday tasks easier, improving balance and mobility, reducing the risk of trips and falls, maintaining independence, and supporting a healthy mind.

Residents over the age of 50 can collect their free exercise booklet and resistance band from a Solihull library or leisure centre. For more information visit our strength and balance website page which also includes demonstration videos of all 10 exercises, and variations for 3 different difficulty levels.
